A tractor plant and the Central Tractor Distributing Office are located in Komprachcice, Poland, which is about seven miles from Opole. During the German occupation parts for tanks were manufactured and assembled at the plant, which at that time was called the Tank Plant and Armament Office (Panzerwerk und Heereszeugamt). During April 1953 the Polish authorities laid off all the employees of the plant. The machinery in the plant was being rearranged.

Comment. [REDACTED] that the plant was inspected by a military commission in the autumn of 1951 and there were rumors that the plant would be taken over by the army.
